Life's too short. Too short for your users to wait for their broadband content to trickle in. Too short for you to let installation and maintenance operations eat up your days. Too short for us to waste your time with overly complex and inordinately expensive business propositions.

How about making life easier for all parties? We all have better things to do, that's for sure. Why can't all that technology take care of itself?

The solution is satellite communications.
The name is Newtec. The system is Sat3Play.

Yes, satellite can do that too.

*Did you know it takes a non-technician 28 minutes to install this terminal?
